TIFFANY & CO.

Announcement

Many misleading advertisements prompt Tiffany & Co. to caution intending purchasers that rings sold elsewhere as "Tiffany rings," or "Tiffany settings," are not made by this house, as Tiffany & Co. are strictly retailers and do not employ agents or sell through other dealers. Their manufactures can be purchased only direct from Tiffany & Co.'s establishments in New York, Paris and London. Tiffany and Co. are the largest retail dealers in diamonds and other precious stones in the world. Their facilities for securing the choicest gems from first hands enable them to maintain a most extensive stock of precious stones and pearls set in all the modern forms of rich as well as inexpensive jewelry

To persons known to the house or who will make themselves known by satisfactory references, Tiffany & Co. will send for inspection selections from their stock

Tiffany & Co.'s 1908 Blue Book is a compact catalogue of 666 pages containing concise descriptions, with range of prices of jewelry, silverware, clocks, bronzes, pottery, glassware, etc, suitable for wedding presents or other gifts—Blue Book sent upon request

The Phillips Exeter Academy

Incorporated April 3, 1781

Formally Opened May 1, 1783

THE ACADEMY offers instruction in all the studies required for admission to the leading colleges and scientific schools.

For Admission to the Junior Class, an examination is required in English, History of the United States, or Ancient History, and Arithmetic. Candidates for admission to other classes must satisfy their Instructors of their fitness, either by examination or by certificates from former teachers.

In General, four years of Latin, Mathematics, and English, three of Greek, two of History, German, and French, and one of Physics or Chemistry, satisfy the ordinary requirements for admission to college.

Diplomas are given to students who honorably complete the course.

The Tuition is $60.00 for the first term, $50.00 for the second, $40.00 for the third, $150.00 a year. About twelve thousand dollars is divided annually among good scholars of high character but slender means.

Examinations for admission to the principal colleges and scientific schools and examinations of the College Entrance Examination Board are held annually in June at the Academy.

Besides the Libraries of the Golden Branch and the G. L. Soule Literary Societies, there is a Reference Library containing about 3000 volumes.

The Physical and Chemical Laboratories are thoroughly equipped and are unsurpassed even by some college laboratories.

The Gymnasium, a brick building with sandstone trimmings, contains 390 lockers, a running track, and rooms for shower bath, baseball practice, bowling alleys, boxing, and bathing. Systematic class exercises, and exercises for individuals adapted to their special needs, under the supervision of a skilled director, form a part of the regular course of Academic training.

Recent Additions include Dunbar Hall (a dormitory for the younger boys), Merrill Hall (administrative offices, rooms for the literary societies, and social room), Hoyt Hall (the newest dormitory), Alumni Hall (a dining hall), Gilman House, Williams House, Veazey House, Hooper House, Porter House, Watkins House, DeMeritt House (cottages), and a Recitation Hall.

EXETER, N. H.

Another year has gone,
How time does fly!
'Twas but yesterday I was born,
What can I do before I die?

Well may we ask the question,
For there's oceans of work to do,
And the tempter makes this suggestion:
Don't let the world's work trouble you.

That is all very well, my dear brother,
For the thoughtless, the false, and the child,
But not so for the men with a mother
Like the school that upon us has smiled.

I might make a bard or a preacher;
I might be a lawyer, or worse;
However, I'm quite a good teacher
Of how to look after your purse.

Whatever we do, let us do it
As well as we can from the start;
I sell "trash," but I try to imbue it
With beauty, and merit, and art.

I've got no great brain, and no money,
But I keep a right handy old mart,
Call around and with words full of honey
I'll try from you the good coin to part.

It's no use to be preaching and joking,
For this space in THE PEAN costs a lot;
I must say for my wares, I'm not soaking,
Though you think so sometimes when you're hot.

I must now save my cash, for the summer
Is at hand when the birds take their flight,
The wee lads that had ne'er left their mamma
Have now learned to fly like a kite.

They know so much more now than ever
They will when they get to be men,
That they try all the time to be clever,
And they really are quite now and then.

To guide all these lads, Alma Mater,
Is a task that requires great skill,
But we know that nowhere is there greater,
So we leave them to you with a will.

If they drift against us to begin with,
To learn fast they surely will try,
For they'll see if they don't, here they can't live,
For someone will sure shut their eye.

GREETING

May our Pean
Be worthy
The class of nineteen hundred eight
And Phillips Exeter.

Here you'll find
Some knocks, some flings,
The faces
Of assorted races
And other curious things.

Please don't mind
The fun and knocks,
And jokes,
Lots of other folks
Have lived through greater shocks.

Now give us
When you've read it,
This, which is our due:
Credit for our good intent and
Credit for the time we've spent.

PREFACE

IT is with mingled feelings of pleasure and regret that we present the twenty-fourth volume of the PEAN to the world in general and to old Exeter in particular: pleasure, because the book is the consummation of months of hard work: regret, because it marks the termination of the active career of 1908 in Phillips Exeter.

Although at first it seemed impossible to make it a volume worthy and representative of the illustrious class of 1908, we have striven earnestly and conscientiously to do so. We hope the book will meet with your approval.

To Dr. Arthur G. Leacock, for his many helpful criticisms and kindly interest, the Board wishes to express their deepest gratitude.

The PEAN Board is also greatly indebted for their assistance to the following: W. E. Guthrie, A. L. Flesh, Mr. J. A. Mitchell, E. S. Wheelan, Miss P. M. Royce, C. Sprague, W. M. Grimes, G. S. Phenix, J. S. Haines, R. C. Benchley, F. T. Weil, M. S. Baldwin, and F. P. Craig.

The Senior Class

Senior Editorial

THE CLASS OF 1908 is nearing the end of its career at Exeter. We have enjoyed our victories and taken our defeats with the true Exeter spirit. In athletics we have given to the school men of whom we are justly proud, and who in their after life are sure to bring credit to our class and to Exeter. We may be justly proud of our scholarship record, a record which upholds the position that Exeter occupies in the world.

Many of us have been looking forward with eager anticipation to the time when we are to leave the school, but now as the time draws near we find that it is not all pleasure. We begin to think of the friendships we have formed here, and, as we are now to go out into the world, many of these friends we shall never see again, and we are reluctant to break these familiar ties.

All the disappointments of our course will be forgotten as graduation day comes, and as we leave the school never more to return as undergraduates, we wish to give to Phillips Exeter Academy our deepest thanks for all it has done for us and to wish for it the greatest success and prosperity for the future.

UPPER MIDDLE EDITORIAL

IT is only because we believe that you are strongly in need of advice, '09, that we take the trouble to insert even these few words within the covers of the PEAN. Because your puny football team, in that first tie game, was favored with wholly undeserved luck last fall, you fondly imagined that you might be able to cope with the gridiron warriors of the noble class of '08. But your wild optimism was rudely smashed to the ground when the final test came, and you beheld '08 once again victors. Nevertheless, you saw no portentous omen in that defeat, but rather your arrogant self-confidence increased, and you added lofty airs to your already insolent bearing. For when the Faculty Shield meet began to loom large in the field of class vision you impertinently prophesied the destruction of your betters. But, when the feeble sounds of your cheers were extinguished in the mighty roar of loyal '08 throats, your hopes lay dashed in the lowly dust wherein you grovelled. Again were you humbled and cast down from your insecure edifice of pride when the skilled hands of the 1908 bowling team administered a most crushing defeat.

O Class of Nineteen Hundred and Nine, take heed of our counsel, and, ere you plunge into the murky blackness of absolute obscurity, justify your march into oblivion by the outward signs of its progress. Assume that humble demeanor which so becomes your lowly status, and let no man imagine from your haughty airs that you are anything of any moment whatever. Adopt that cringing and fearful aspect which is in common with your achievements, and crawl, rather than brazenly march as you have, to your lowly station in the eternal darkness which shall forever shroud your memory.

THE wonderful class of '09
All thought that their team was fine,
They only could win
By their music of chin,
But never by hitting the line.

The famous fine class of '09
Is an organization divine,
Its doughtiest feat
Is to sit down and eat,
There's no other way it can shine.

We present you hereby with a lime
Brought hence from a far southern clime,
Take heed from this fruit
You're all lemons to boot,
And to call you aught else is a crime.

The Lower Middle Class

LOWER MIDDLE EDITORIAL

WOULD, '10, that you had had our opportunity to watch with critical eye the origin and growth of that disease, so incurable and at once so contagious among the odd classes, which took hold of 1909 early in its career, and by its steady course of destruction has brought it to its present deplorable condition.

The best we can do now, however, is to warn you of the way in which that devasting germ, caput expansum, creeps into the system of the unwary young body.

You are about to enter the trying career of the upper-middle year, and, as has been the case with us, you will be in no way aided by 1909. Therefore make up your minds that yours is not a light task; forget that you have won the inter-class football championship and start in next fall determined to continue our good work, namely, curing 1909 of caput expansum. So far you have been dealing with a prep. class of a score of men. Next year you will not only be struggling with upper classmen (we don't believe that will trouble you), but you will bear the responsibility of the whole school. Give your hearty support to the Academy teams, for one of your chief duties is to take revenge on our rival, Andover, and, as the largest class, the spirit of the school will in a great measure depend upon your attitude. Do as 1908 has done—finish strong, and with the true Exeter spirit.

The Junior Class

Junior Class

THE illustrious class of 1908 does you the honor, 1911, to bestow upon you these few words of advice. Although it is the vainest of pipe dreams for you to imagine that you can ever attain to half the usefulness of 1908, still it is possible that you will improve somewhat in the course of time, and it is quite probable that you will amount to several hundred times as much as that insignificant organization known as the class of 1909.

Therefore, enjoy your childhood days as much as possible, continue in your delightful pastimes of mud-pie making, taking care of rag dolls, and becoming expert in wielding your rattles. Remember that temperance is a great virtue, and do not over-indulge in Nestle's Food or Spearmint gum. Whenever you hear a 1909 man using naughty words, run and tell teacher. Do not bully your smaller comrades, such as Walsh and Cornell, and be respectful to your superiors, (which does not include 1909). Above all, rely on your own instincts of right and wrong, and do not permit any funny business from 1909.

The Pean Board

THE PEAN

FOR twenty-four years the PEAN has been published by the Senior Class, and, as the only book of its kind, has contained a complete summary of the statistics and events of the school year. Each publication has shown more or less improvement over the previous one, until at the present time the editors are forced to do their utmost to accomplish their aim. This year we have increased the size of the book (though not the profits) by adding the pictures and biographies of non-returning upper-middlers, by putting in views of football, track and baseball games, and by increasing the number of knocks and limericks. All "roasts" have been given in good spirit, with the double purpose of giving our readers a chance to laugh, and of perpetuating the memory of events in the history of our class, which we will in future years look back upon with pleasure.

The PEAN Board feel that they have done their best, and sincerely hope that the school will indeed find the 1908 PEAN above the standard set by previous boards, and entirely worthy of P. E. A.

THE BULLETIN

AMONG the PEAN'S competitors may be mentioned that sensational sheet, The Bulletin. It makes its appearance every once in a while, and generally averages up four numbers per school year. The appearance of this blue covered little pamphlet is always the signal for a violent riot to obtain copies. On the whole, it compares very favorably with the Monthly, and quite surpasses the Exonian, but does not come up to the PEAN. Its sphere of usefulness is of course limited, since the articles are not contributed by the student-body. But its moral tone is unquestionably of the highest type.

*Resigned

THE EXONIAN.

THE Exonian is without doubt the best semi-weekly publication gotten out by the Exonian Board of The Phillips Exeter Academy at Exeter, N. H. We make this sweeping and startling statement without any reservation, casting prudence and conservatism to the four winds of Heaven. One of the salient features of the Exonian is its tenacity in keeping up the old traditions. It has always been a tradition that the Exonian never contained any news. The boards in the past have always striven earnestly to uphold this tradition, and the present board in particular deserves commendation for its praiseworthy efforts in this direction.

It is not our intention to criticise the Exonian in any way, shape or manner. Its faults are far too evident to need any criticism. We should like to advise, however, in a kindly way, that they take out some of their advertisements and put in a little news. It should not be done all at once, because the shock would be too great, but should take place gradually, and we predict in a few years' time a great and glorious success.

THE MONTHLY

THE Phillips Exeter Monthly was first put before the public in 1886. For eleven years it struggled desperately to keep its head above water, but at last yielded to inexorable fate, and gently passed away in 1897. This year, after a trance of ten years, it was resurrected and once more put into active operation.

At first there was a tremendous furor in the literary circles of Exeter, and the PEAN and Exonian trembled, lest their usefulness should be overshadowed.

The chief object of the Monthly is to provide a suitable receptacle for the literary and witty outbursts of students who have a desire to write and to be read. Many a young author has handed in beautiful short stories, with mingled feelings of fear and pleasure; pleasure, because they would be read and praised by other students; fear, lest the editors of the Monthly should chance to read the Short Story Magazine.

It is the intention of the editors, in the near future, to publish, in conjunction with the paper, a comic section that will make the Sunday American's colored supplement look like a pair of overalls at the June Ball.

THE SCHOOL COUNCIL

THE School Council was organized in September, 1907. For the fall term the membership of the Council was: A representative of each of the four classes; the presidents of Abbot, Soule, Peabody and Hoyt Halls; Seniors, who were Honor men one or more terms of their Upper Middle Year; the captains of the football, baseball and track teams; the editor-in-chief of the Exonian; and the head waiter at Alumni Hall. To this number were added at the beginning of the second term the Upper Middlers, who were Honor men in the fall term, and the football captain for the next school year. Five members of the faculty, of whom at least two are present at each meeting, act as advisers of the Council.

The object and aims of the Council are these: It discusses any problems of school life, or school discipline, which may be suggested by its members; it discusses fully and frankly the rules by which the school is governed, and may suggest new ones to the faculty, but it does not make laws for the school. Whether it may receive legislative powers in the future depends upon its development and upon the influence and authority which it may acquire.

The Council should be influential in the school, inasmuch as a majority of its members is elected by the students. If natural leaders are chosen as captains of teams, presidents of the classes and of the dormitories, these leaders may exert a very strong influence upon student opinions.

FOOTBALL

A REVIEW of the last football season shows an unusual state of affairs. With seven members of last year's eleven back and an abundance of new material the prospects for a victory over Andover were never more bright. The season opened with a whirlwind start, as Exeter defeated Brewster Academy, Bates, Bowdoin, Lowell Textile, Harvard Second, Cushing Academy, and Harvard Freshmen in succession, usually by large scores. Williston Seminary and Exeter played a tie game early in the season. In the games with the Yale Freshmen and the Princeton Freshmen the men seemed almost stage-struck and did not play to the best of their ability until the second half of each game. The preliminary season closed with a decisive victory over Colby in a game which brought out the true power of the Exeter team.

A large crowd had gathered to witness the final game of the season. Here Exeter seemed again to have stage-fright; fumbles and slow playing greatly retarded the progress of the team. Andover was not slow to take advantage of this, and gained a touchdown after a fumble, and later a drop kick. The second half seemed to bring new life and vigor to the Exeter team, which, by continually forcing the Andover eleven down the field, secured a well-earned touchdown. The goal was kicked and again Exeter started off toward Andover's line, but time was soon called, with the result, Andover, 9; Exeter, 6.

This pluck in the face of almost certain defeat brought much praise and commendation to the Exeter eleven. No one felt the defeat more keenly than Coach Hogan, who had put much energy and careful training into his work. To him, therefore, and Trainer Connors, Assistant Coach Stevenson, the captain, members of the team and the manager, the thanks of the entire school are most assuredly due.

1908 Football Team

1908 FOOTBALL

ALTHOUGH Coach Hogan took pleasure in snatching captains and players from the senior football squad, a leader was finally secured well fitted to frame a team worthy of 1908. Captain Hurley led his team to an easy victory over the noble 1909 team, picked from one hundred and ninety men. But 1910, inspired by the example of '08, put up a good game. Owing to injuries, Captain Hurley was unable to bring his regular team together in any one game, so the Lower Middlers held them 0 to 0 for three games. At the end of the third game, unwilling to impose upon the officials longer, the teams agreed to play ten more minutes. It was an unfortunate move for the seniors. They seemed to forget that '10 was just lately graduated from the incubator, and that he was not yet out of practice in the manly games of hide-and-seek and blind man's buff. Darkness had changed football to one of those games. With twenty seconds to play, '10 received the kickoff, and, after scrimmaging a few minutes, made his way unseen to '08's goal. The score was 11-6. And thus the title of champions was awarded to 1910.

1909 FOOTBALL

ASSISTED by a brilliant streak of that luck which sometimes comes to the assistance of the most helpless, the football team of the class of 1909 succeeded in holding 1908 to a tie score in the first game. But in the following game the minds of all 1909 men were disabused of the idea that their class was the equal of 1908. The empty boasts of '09 were proved as groundless as the rumor that the class was going to get together and unearth a few traces of class spirit. However, we must admit, that their team, composed of Grattan and Kiley, was almost the equal of the prep. eleven in many respects. It was indeed unfortunate that such an efficient eleven could not have won a single game.

1911 FOOTBALL TEAM

THE earth quaked with the heavy tread of the Prep Football team and the men of the Lower Middle, the Upper Middle, and the Senior classes turned grey with fear as mighty men like Smith and Timmins strode haughtily upon the field. Then did that fearful array plough irresistibly up and down the field—for there was no one to stop them.

But, when the whistle blew, and 1910 smote full tilt upon the serried ranks of these proud Preps, then did their great strength and stupendous weight avail them little, and they went down—down to inglorious defeat. And no man knows why a team with an average weight of ninety pounds, with every man in the full prime of his fourteen years, valiant and strong, fresh from strict training upon sterilized milk and Mellen's food, imbued with dauntless spirit by daily wrestles with rattles; no man, we say, no woman, not even one of their nurses, knows why the class of 1911 was not victorious.

TRACK

EXETER'S preliminary season in track last year was not of the brightest. At both the B. A. A. meet in March, and the Harvard Interscholastic meet in May, the team made but a poor showing. Andover, on the other hand, won the meet at Cambridge by a large margin.

Through the untiring efforts of Trainer Connors the men picked to represent Exeter on May thirtieth were a determined lot. A closer and fiercer contest would be impossible; separated by inches the men tumbled over the line at the finish, making it difficult even for the judges to award the places. Exeter easily won the shot-put, with a record of 44 feet, 11 1-2 inches, and the hammer-throw; while Andover took first in the broad-jump and pole-vault. The high-jump was another fiercely contested event, won at length by Exeter by an inch.

The final score, 56 5-6 to 39 1-6, would seem to indicate an easy victory for Andover, but those who saw the meet could not help being impressed with the determined spirit which Captain Gilroy and his men showed, and must have realized how close and worthy of Exeter the meet actually was.

This year our track team seems exceptionally strong. In the Faculty shield meet, February 22, Captain Burlingame broke the indoor high-jump record by clearing the bar at 5 feet, 9 inches, and J. A. Connolly equalled the 40 yards dash record of 4 3-5 seconds. Although handicapped in several ways, Exeter took second place in the Interscholastic Meet, February 29, where E. H. Baker equalled the 40 yards dash record of 4 3-5 seconds. Andover's strong relay team likewise went down to defeat at our hands, so that our outlook May 30 is very encouraging.

BASEBALL

THE first call of Captain Cooney for baseball candidates was responded to heartily. Although an entire team of "E" men returned to school in the spring, the spirit of competition was in no way deadened and the outlook for a successful season was unusually bright.

Unfortunately the weather conditions were a source of continual annoyance to captain, coach and players. Out of fifteen games, five were cancelled, and several others were played in cold or rainy weather. Three defeats marked the beginning of the season, after which the team rallied and won their games until they met Harvard on May 15. From that time they wavered between victory and defeat. Erratic playing characterized most of the games and it was not until shortly before June 8 that the players showed their real ability.

The prospect of a close and exciting game with Andover brought forth one of the largest crowds of supporters of both the red and blue in the history of the school. Andover scored once in the first and twice in the third inning; after that they were unable to get a man around the bases. With two runs to her credit at the end of the fourth inning, Exeter fought to overtake her rival's lead. Fortune, however, stayed with the blue, and, although Exeter averaged two hits to Andover's one, the innings went by until the game finally closed with the score 3 to 2 in favor of Andover.

Defeat must not cause us to overlook the conscientious work of both the coach and the team. They did their utmost to bring victory to the red and gray, and deserve the deepest gratitude of the whole school for the splendid showing they made.

CHAMPIONS 1907

NINETEEN hundred and eight, 11 ; nineteen hundred and seven, 4. The score tells the story of our game with the Seniors. They had already won two baseball championships and with a team of veterans they started in to "do things" to 1908. As they put it, "there would be nothing to it." But "pride goeth before a fall," for 1907 barely managed to work four men across the plate, while 1908 led all the way. One week later the Lower Middlers, fresh from their victory over 1910, having also defeated us the year before, felt sure of repeating the trick, but somehow their hopes were rudely dashed to the ground and they went down to defeat by the score of 11 to 7, and 1908 had won the championship.

NINETEEN hundred and nine began her downward slide, when her baseball team went down to defeat at the hands of 1908 to the tune of 11 to 6. Never since that sad day have they been victorious. The poor, misguided creatures really thought they might win, but the "fates were agin them."

Just before the "killing," Capt. Carberry called his men together, and, in a few well chosen words, told them to win. How well his advice was heeded the score explains, but cheer up, little boys, '08 will soon be gone and there is still hope.

FACULTY vs. CLASS DAY OFFICERS

THE day was ominous, the heat terrific. There was no breath of wind stirring. But suddenly a burning blast of hot air zipped across the campus. The Faculty had burst forth in a thundering cheer as Mr. X——— slid fifteen yards to second base. Now the reverberating volume of their war-whoops rumbled forth, "Ego, mei, mi—vobis, hunkuste, zero, probus, crash—gee what an awful smash! Faculty Zips! Faculty Boom! Faculty Ah!"

But the defiant detonation of the Seniors' answer swept grandly back in challenge,

"Yes we saw him when he done it,
But he couldn't have did it if he'd run it,
We're the cherubims from heaven—
Hooray, Hooraw, Oughty Seven!"

* * * * *

And now it was the seventh inning, and behold the score was seventy-five to seventy-four in someone's favor. The merciless rays of the sun beat down with cruel intensity upon the sweltering, sweating gladiators of the diamond. Their dust begrimed features were drawn and agonized, but their bloodshot eyes expressed an indomitable resolution to fight it out to the bitter end. Suddenly a fearful silence ensued. Mr. Y——— of the Faculty was at bat! The Seniors' pitcher executed his preliminary gyrations. Then the horse-hide sphere shot for the plate straight and swift as a rifle ball. There was a deafening crash, and the ball rolled about three yards in front of home. The excited multitude would have broken into applause, but a voice rang out clear and full of pity above the tumult, "Don't cheer, boys, those poor fellows are dying."

Lo, it was the fortieth inning, and the score was still tied. Then, as the grand summer moon sailed high above old Exeter, and as the silver chimes of an alarm clock rang the midnight hour, the game was called off, and the yawning doors of the hospital stood agape for eighteen sorely wounded diamond warriors.

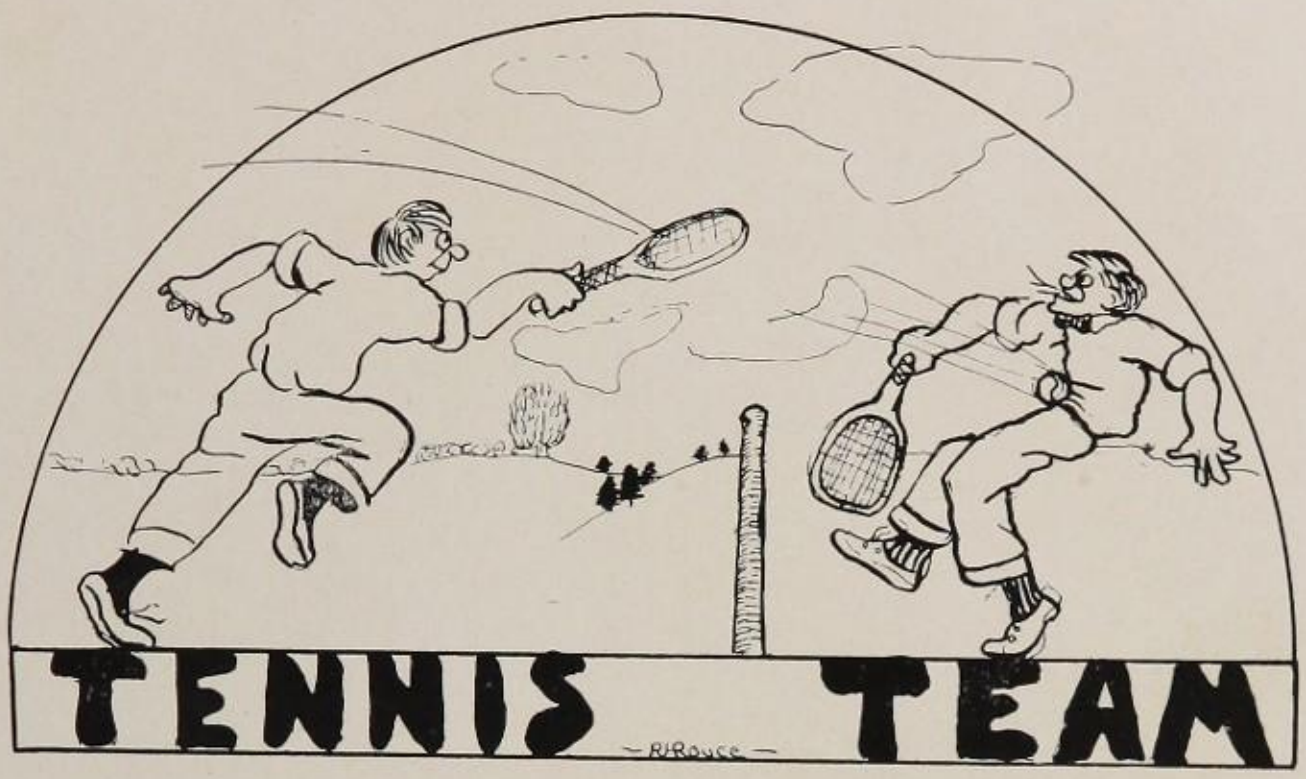
The Tennis Team



EXETER'S tennis season ended June 15, 1907, with the match with Andover. Hartwell and Hincks of Andover won the doubles after three close games. In the singles, Park of Exeter defeated Thurston, thus making the whole match a tie. Park also represented Exeter in the Harvard Interscholastic tournament, where he won two matches, thus scoring two points.

ONLY two members of the 1906 golf team, Carter, (Capt.), and Royce, returned to school last year, but Captain Carter's call for candidates was well responded to, and a good team was gotten together. But two preliminary matches were held; one with Haverhill, and one with Portsmouth. Of these, Exeter won from Haverhill and lost to Portsmouth. It must be remembered, however, that the Academy team was playing against much older and experienced men. The match with Andover was held June 5, 1907, on the ground of the Island Golf Club at Haverhill. The contest, although played in the rain, was very close and exciting. It resulted in a victory for Exeter, by the narrow margin of 1 point.

The scoring was by the Nassau system.

PEAN BOARD
STOODES

Carpenter, '08 (in Dec.)—"You may think me a fantastic—Whoop!"

Murray, '09 (having been nominated for an office in a class meeting)—"Mr. President, I recline."

Mr. Head (to Brush, '08)—"See here, Brush, you'll have to brush-up."

Mr. Kirtland—"Grattan, what kind of condition is this?"
Grattan—"Simple future."
Mr. Kirtland—"What do you mean by a simple future?"
Grattan—"One that will happen in past time."

Mr. Kirtland—"What is adoret?"
Dunn—"Indicative in the subjunctive."

Carberry, '09 (translating pulchra faciat te prole parentem)—"That you may become the son of a very pretty child."

Hastings, '08 (translating German)—"And the oyster reached out his arms to the young boy."

Hawke, '08 (in Math.)—"Well, I can do this problem by degrees."
Mr. Francis—"H'm, you seem to be doing it, by very slow degrees, Hawke."

Sprague, '09 (in English class to Mr. Webber)—"What did you say about Mr. and Mrs. Macbeth?"

Wesman, '11—"When making out schedule, Mr. Tufts, I don't see any reason for my taking Junior English; I taught it for three years."
Mr. Tufts—"Well, Wesman, if you wish, I will change places with you."

Mr. Kirtland (while reading classical translation of the Æneid to class, addressing Heald, '08, who is sleeping)—"Which one of these translations do you find the most soporific?"

Bowen, '08 (translating gaedens popularibus aurîs)—"Rejoicing in the popular airs."
Mr. Kirtland—"That doesn't mean rag-time, Bowen."

Mr. Cushwa—"Where did Shakespeare get his material for Julius Cæsar?"
Freeman, '09—"From Pluto."

Selden, '09 (explaining "doth not Brutus bootless kneel?")—"Bootless means without his shoes."

Nichols '09 (after Mr. Cushwa has carefully explained the use of the comma)—"Commas separate words which belong together."

Jones, '09, asks Mr. Hertell to translate "Ich habe es gefunden," but loses his nerve at the critical moment.

Mr. Ford in German class—"Well, Suckley, you haven't studied this lesson, have you?"

Suckley, '08—"Apparently not."

Mr. Helm in Senior Latin—"Is this right, Bowen?"

Bowen, '08—"No, sir."

Mr. Helm—"Well, then you are reading without any insight."

Noyes, '10 (translating le chien est à mon frère)—"The dog is my son."

Mr. Kirtland—"What was the Saturnian age?"

S. B. White, '08—"Prehistoric."

Mr. Kirtland—"Well, Crocker, what do you think?"

Crocker, '08—"One of the muses."

Warner, '11—"Would it be proper to say I halved the apple with him?"

Mr. Tufts—"How do you spell that verb?"

Warner, '11—H-A-V-E-D.

Mr. Tufts—"Is that so! I'll keep the apple, Warner, yours is the lemon."

Ricker, '10—"Is swollen used as an adjective?"

Mr. Tufts—"Yes; sometimes applied to heads; look out for yours."

Carberry, '09 (stumbling over sentence in Greek, which correctly reads, "And the whole army stopped")—"I don't know that word, sir."

Dr. Leacock—"That means whole."

Carberry—"And the hole stopped the army."

Mr. Kirtland—"Suckley, translate."

Suckley, '08 (who did not know the place, after glancing over the page again)—"O immortal gods! Where in the world are we?"

Mr. Kirtland—"Very appropriate, Suckley."

Mr. Kirtland (explaining Campus Martius)—"The Campus Martius was a kind of 'Sunday Campus' to the Romans, where they used to exercise, then jump into the Tiber instead of taking a shower-bath."

Mr. Kirtland—"What is the construction of that verb, Cary?"

Cary, '09—"The simple perfect."

Mr. Kirtland—"It is all very simple."

Mr. Shute (in German class)—"What is the word for warm, Houston?"

Houston, '08—"Hell."

Mr. Shute—"Now you are drawing inferences."

Mr. Francis (reseating class after spring vacation, coming to Danser's name)—"I guess we had better leave two seats there."

SENIOR QUOTATIONS

BOWEN:

"O wad some pow'r the giftie gie us,
To see oursels as others see us."

BURNS:

"Vaulting ambition which o'erleaps itself."

WARNER:

"By the pricking of my thumbs
Something wicked this way comes."

DUDLEY:

"Appearances deceive,
And this one maxim is a standing rule:
Men are not what they seem."

LOFTUS:

"Every man is the architect of his own fortune."

CARPENTER:

"God made him, and therefore let him pass for a man."

BOWSER:

"Her voice was ever soft, gentle, and low,
An excellent thing in woman."

SAYWARD:

"The tartness of his face sours ripe grapes."

BRICELAND:

"Than that poor Brutus, with himself at war,
Forgets the shows of love to other men."

COOK:

"Now could I, Casca,
Name to thee a man most like this dreadful night."

SHATERIAN:

"Where wilt thou find a cavern dark enough
To mask thy monstrous visage?"

DANSER:

"O ye gods,
Render me worthy of this noble wife!"

TOWER:

"Now bid me run,
And I will strive with things impossible."

PECK:

"When you begin with so much pomp and show,
Why is the end so little and so low?"

BRUSH:

"If it be a sin to covet girls,
I'm the most offending soul alive."

HEALD:

"Reading maketh a full man, conference a ready man, and writing an exact man."

HICKMAN:

"Not Hercules could have knocked out his brains—for he had none."

HOUSTON:

"Bold at the council board, but cautious in the field."

T. A. WILSON:

"He that laughs at his own jokes, laughs alone."

ORR:

"Early to bed and early to rise
Makes a man healthy, wealthy, and wise."

WARNER:

"They could not find a heart within the beast."

SUCKLEY:

"I have a man's mind, but a woman's might."

HE SEEKS TO CONQUER

(A Playlet)

DRAMATIS PERSONAE

HUNGRY BILL (who is looking for a home).

THE VICTIM (who is seeking an escape).

NORRIS WILLIAM GILLETTE (no relation to the razor), a subtle young man, slightly inclined to avoirdupois.

Any student living in the vicinity of Boston and having, presumably, a well-stocked larder and a place to sleep.

NOTE.—This playlet is rendered as a continuous performance with a complete change in the minor character at each production. The stellar role will continue to be filled by the inimitable Mr. Gillette).

TIME—Immediately preceding any vacation.

PLACE—Anywhere that the victim can be cornered.

CURTAIN RISES

(Victim is discovered in his room with Hungry Bill seated in an engaging attitude before him.)

HUNGRY BILL (carelessly)—"Vic, old boy, are you going home this vacation?"
THE VICTIM (nervously)—"Why er—er—Yes, I suppose so."

Profound silence of five seconds.

HUNGRY BILL—"I wish I were; but, you see, I live so far from here, that it is impossible. Does your mother ever allow you to bring a guest home with you?"

THE VICTIM—"It depends upon who it is—No, I mean she does sometimes."

More silence.

(Victim looks frantically about for avenue of escape.)

HUNGRY BILL—"Gee! I hate to stay up here when everybody is going away. Do they have good things to eat at your house?"

The Victim's answer dies away into a mere inarticulate gurgle.

HUNGRY BILL (with growing courage)—"What is the fare from here to your home and how far do you live from the depot?"

Exit the Victim by nearest window, followed by Hungry Bill with determination written on his countenance and on two of his chins.

(Intermission of varying length of time until next victim is cornered.)

LIMERICKS

Duryee with boldness did state,
That throughout the year nineteen-eight,
He'd behave himself so
That he wouldn't get "Pro,"
But three E's decided his fate.

A student whose last name is Greene,
On the running track often was seen.
It was not for his pleasure
He adopted this measure,
But he thought he could make the track team.

Groaned Cooney: "It is my sad fate,
To weigh three hundred and eight.
I would gladly pay
All my money away,
For a scheme to reduce this great weight."

There was a young student from Bath,
Who was nearly as thin as a lath,
He spent his nights fussing,
And all the day mussing
With German, and Latin, and Math.

There was a young farmer from Corning,
Who plugged steadily night, noon, and morning.
Joe H. is his name,
He has won himself fame
By ignoring the school painter's warning.

There was a young fellow named Brooks,
Who thought he could pass on his looks,
But it was a sad break,
For he'd made a mistake,
And everyone cried "Get the hooks."

LIMERICKS

There was a young student named Greey,
Who used to play pool every day,
  But his game was so bum
  That it made him feel glum,
And it took all his money away.

There was a young fusser named Cates,
Who in gym. liked to use the chest weights,
  For an hour each day,
  With these he would play,
So his arms would be strong for his dates.

A fellow named Wilson last Fall,
Had a girl come up here for the ball.
  When he started for lunch
  And suggested some punch,
She replied, " No, thanks, Wilson—that's all."

A couple of E's in Latin,
  And frequent flunks in Greek,
Make some of our poor students
  Get " pro." for many a week.

Motto for Alumni Hall, with apologies to Pope :

" None but the brave,
  None but the brave,
  None but the brave deserve the fare."

When you listen to the yammer,
And the stutter, and the stammer,
Of a much-abused pianner,
  You may know
That our husky Weidenhammer
Is the rammer and the jammer
  Of the ivories. It is so.

THE ASSEMBLY

HE asked her up here for a hop,
But thought his father blundered,
Because he said it must cost no more
Than an even fourth of 100

He bought the tickets first of all,
It gave him trouble, plenty;
For just the girl and her chaperone
The fare came to 4.20

Of course he had to order flowers,
Violets, for dress of blue,
For these, and the express on them
He paid 3.22

For candy, too, he sent to town,
And how he did curse fate,
When Huyler's sent a bill to him
For just 3.58

The dance itself was only 1
But driving isn't free,
For the cab in which they rode that night,
He had to pay out 3

There was one thing that he'd forgotten,
But he soon remembered, when,
The hotel bill was sent to him
For just an even 10

But still he'd had one day of fun,
And, sure as I'm alive,
When all his bills were settled up
He'd spent just 25

We have here a subject called "dec,"
Which is something you get in the neck,
For because of the pains,
And the woes it contains,
It sure is the limit, by heck.

Ralph Meras is wise to us all,
For he stings us in both Spring and Fall.
He buys at half-price,
Then he marks 'em up twice,
Even Cæsar can't conquer his Gaul.

LIMERICKS

Omar Harding went a walking,
And a talking, and a stalking,
Of his prey.
What he saw, or did, or heard,
We never knew a word,
But he's arguing about it
To this day.

Out in China
It's much finer
Than 'tis here.
So says Warner,
He was born there,
He'll return
With A's to burn
Another year.

There was a young fellow named Cates,
Who went on such terrible skates
That he, when he died,
Was shown the outside,
But never the real "Pearly Gates."

Suckley, Suckley, why so shy?
There's a tear-drop in your eye.
Who has made our darling cry?
Some one said, as he went by,
"He's no perfect lady!"

Munroe Franklin Jones
One day
To the chemical lab. did go,
Chlorine gas he tried to mix
With nitrogen, and in the fix
He was scattered so
This poor M (uch) F (uddled) J (ay)
That all but the Jones part blew away,
And that is the reason we never say
Munroe Franklin Jones.

CELEBRATION SONG

[Music, "Princeton Cannon Song"]

IN Exeter they have a team
That knows just how to fight,
With Exeter spirit back of it
We'll celebrate to-night.
This evening at the campus
We'll sing praises of our great,
So whoop it up for Exeter,
For to-night we'll celebrate.

CHORUS

Fight, fight, for Exeter,
And raise the good crimson on high!
Fight, fight, against the blue,
Old Andover to defy!
Rah! Rah! Rah!
Cheer them with all our might,
Give "individuals" for the team,
We will fight with a vim
That is dead sure to win,
And celebrate to-night!

We care not what the sport may be,
Of spirit we've no lack;
It's all the same in football
As in baseball, or in track.
Our team is fighting now
As only Exeter teams can fight,
So whoop it up for Exeter,
And we'll celebrate to-night!

Chorus, followed by three long Exeters.

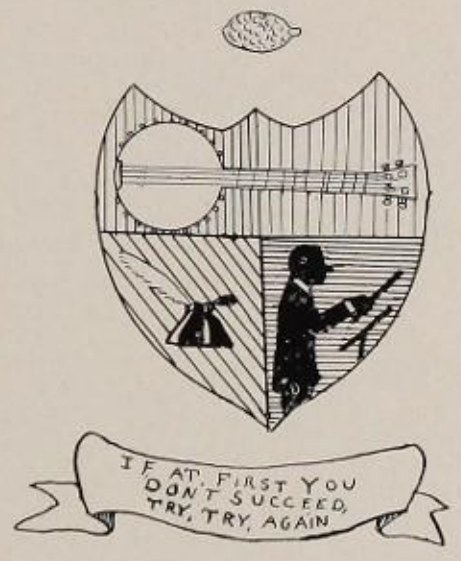
WHO'S WHAT?

In and Out of the Senior Class

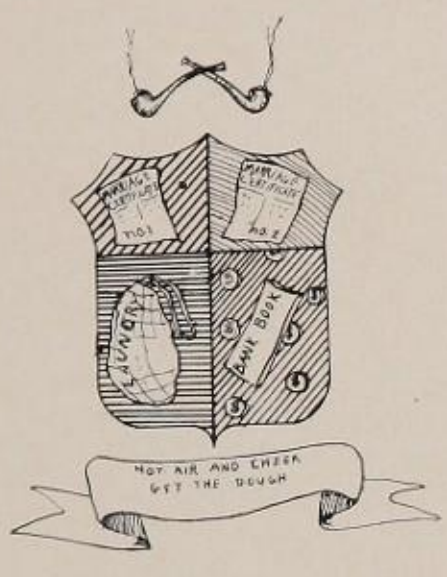


HICKMAN, HARRY CHALMERS. Tragic author and musician. By unusual luck and (well concealed ability), this young man has risen among the ranks of those who make money (?) from the skilful maneuvers of their pens. Former leader of the Sympathy Orchestra and progenitor of many discords, he began life in prehistoric Delaware and learned the trade of bee raising, after being stung many times; this, however, proved good training for his later career at Exeter, where he took up defeat as one of his courses, a matter of course, of course. His political career was a failure, but he finally was chosen manager of the Banjo Club, which organization is the result of his momentous brain. Favorite motto: "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again." Author of "The Masquerader." Composer of "Home, Sweet Home." Address, care Miss Take, 23 Hope Street.

CRANDALL, DERBY, JR. As his name implies his chief occupation is to be a sport, especially in the hat line. Not being satisfied with this, he purchased several loud ties which sounded well with the band on his hat. As to his socks, they stand alone—that is, in a class by themselves for two qualities, gayness and—well, say strength. As a diabolo specialist Crandall is a regular diable (French), and with the possible exception of Jeffery(s) Goldberg he stands unexcelled in diabling with everyone's private affairs. When he has won his "E" in track (forbid that, ye fates), he expects to have acquired sufficient wind to take up his position as the man behind the counter at the store with the yellow front. Author of "Nearly a Hero." Favorite motto: "Hope springs eternal in the human breast." Address, Kindergarten department of New York's bedroom.

McEntyre, James George. Born on St. Patrick's day in New York City. George was very popular when a little boy at Military School, indeed, it was told that it was possible for him to become President of the United States. But his head did not become turned by this knowledge, so he entered Exeter at an early age, where he acquired the title of "The Terrible Pole," not because of his prodigious length, but because of his pronounced socialistic tendencies. At Exeter George has identified himself with almost everything, including Lontz. He is a wonder on the mandolin, and can rend(er) the "Merry Widow" with gusto. His principal occupation is in answering his heavy correspondence, and wondering whether or not he is still the "candy kid" with his latest affair. Right here we wish to say that George has a weak spot for prunes and mustard. This diet probably accounts for his taste in socks, which we notice are pretty hot. Author of "Three Weeks." Composer of "It's a different girl again." Address, in care of Schlitz, Milwaukee.

Suckley, Robert Bowne, Jr. An Anglicized American from Rhinebeck, N. Y. Successor to the Rt. Hon. Mr. Richard Canfield. Manufacturer of Full House Playing Cards and publisher of "Chips Dogs." Distributing agent for "Old English Cut Plug Tobacco." Librarian of the Hinds and Nobles Memorial Library, whose chief work, "The American Boy's Handibook," he daily peruses. Having nothing but a smooth tongue and a teddy-bear, the dear little darling broke loose in Exeter, where he is still broke and still loose. He has mingled more or less, principally the latter, in class politics and finally landed the Bowling Managership. At present he eats, drinks, smokes, sleeps, trots, and flunks at regular intervals. An American by birth, but a foreigner by training. Author of "The Gambler," and "The Prince Chap." Composer of "Money Musk." Cable address, "English-sport."



Shaterian, William Shadrach. A member of the Grafters' Union. Proprietor of a celebrated laundry firm, and High Muckamuck of an athletic goods corporation. His laundry business consists of giving away soft soap about cleanliness; his athletic supply trade is largely in raising the prices. Chief Moneymaker of the "E" book. Class Day Horrortor, a position attained by his wonderful presence of mind in other people's affairs, his gracefulness, and his smile that won't come off. His vocal talent is not inferior to his elocution, although he sometimes falls behind a bar or so. In Hoboken, N. J., his neighbors, finding him unbearable, sent him to Exeter as second class mail matter. An elocutionist by fate and grafter by nerve. He is author of "Frenzied Finance," composer of "Every little bit added to what you've got makes just a little bit more." Address, Everywhere All the Time.

Carpenter, Arthur Wiltse. The fanatic boy defective from the Boston branch of the Lydia Pinkham detective agency. Manufacturer of the famous "Brown Electrical Revolvers" and the "Carpenter Policeman's Billy" (an exhibition in the gym.). Exeter Agent for the Correspondence School branch of gymnastics. Ringleader of the Abolitionist party in its fight against Ivory Soap, Razors, and Steam Laundries. Should-be member of the Exeter Field Club. Coach of the Harvard diabolo team. Formerly chief attraction of Barnum and Bailey's side show, from which he recently escaped. Author of "Jack at All Trades," "Pigs is Pigs," "The Underdog." Composer of "I'm Afraid to Go Home in the Dark" (without my billy). Motto, "Every DOG has his day." Address, care of Ives and Brown, Athletic Goods Co., South Boston, Mass.

A (S)TORY WORTH WEIL

The Gallant Prince, when 'twas well Nye morning, held only an Ace Orr so, while the Wise Dean of Litchfield, not knowing what was the Mather, presented his Bill. Just then the Butler came Bowen in with a Greene Spear; with a Glassy stare the Prince drove him from the Tower. He landed safely on some Strong Moss by a little Pond which he Newell belonged to the Miller. He Fried himself from the Mudge, but had to Buck through the Brush before arriving in the Park. Here a Brown Savage started to Chase him with a toma-Hawke, and he had to Hyde in the Church, where he took a Knap. Then an Armstrong Seaman woke him with great Power to ask if the Sleeper had seen his Federhen Bird. Fuller anger he shot both Barrells of his gun at him and ran to escape the Law. When the crime was Dunn he was arrested and forced to give Bond of a Peck of Nichols. A large crowd gathered Oliver Ireland. One man said, "Kenny escape?" "No, he Kent," answered all, and Rising against the Porter undertook to Lynch the prisoner, contrary to the Whytlaw. A Gray Coffin was made by the Carpenter, which was to Cary him to the Graves of Israel. But alas, a Strong Guiney, with a great Noyes, rushes in and Burns up the wheel-Barrow as it drew near the Greenwald cemetery.

"NOBLE'S CAESAR"

Friends, Exonians, students, lend me your ears;
You'll have to "trot" your Caesar or not get it.
The evil that men do lives after them.
The good is oft interred with their bones;
And so it was with Caesar. Doctor Clark
Hath told you Caesar must be read,
And this in him were noble, but not Hinds and Noble.
Here under leave of Wilson and the rest,
For Wilson was a "trotter," too,
Come I tell you about my funeral.
There hath been many flunkers come to school,
Whose E's did with disgust their parents fill,
But none so crass as I.
You all did see how in the Latin room,
I thrice did offer him a bum exam.,
Which he did thrice mark F. Was this success?
I speak not to disprove what Fielding says,
But here I am to tell what I do know.
You all have "trotted" once, not without cause;
What cause withholds you then from "trotting" now?
O, judgement! thou art fled to Sam Bass Warner,
And men have lost their reason. Bear with me,
My "trot" is in Skines' Wilson's room, worse luck,
And I must wait till it comes back to me.

Although fat Hilliard often sighs,
His size is still the same,
And even if his color lies,
No dyes would be to blame.
Now I am sure that when he prays,
His praise the angels sing—
But even if he change his ways
He weighs the same, sweet thing!

FAMILIAR QUOTATIONS

Mr. Amen—"The Senior Class may pass."

Mr. Ford—"Suckley, see if you can do better than your brother."

Mr. Rogers—"No, we do not allow boys to stay in Boston to see shows."

Mr. Ross—"Attention! All ready! Begin!"

Mr. Selleck—"This is solid geometry, but it is our duty to make it plain."

Prof. Kirtland—"Read what the Latin says."

Mr. Fiske—"You can't all be broke at once."

Dr. Leacock—"A dull scholar drops his book."

Dr. Ball—"Come here, Highball."

Mr. Segerblom—"Yes, that's good."

Dr. Clark—"No, not by any possible construction."

Mr. Chadwick—"Congratulations."

Mr. Crosbie—"Gentlemen! Gentlemen!"

Mr. Chase—"I think we may dispense with the music."

Mr. Webber—"Be bold, be bold, be not too bold."

Mr. Helm—"Why, my daughter could do better than that."

Mr. Head—"Is that right, Murray?"

Mr. Hertell—"Isn't it?"

Mr. McKendrick—"Now, we'll have the character and summary of King B——."

Mr. Shute—"Yes, that's all right."

Mr. Cushwa—"Is this theme strictly original?"

LIMERICKS

Some Holmes seem bright and cheery,
  And others seem not so,
But what goes on within these Holmes
  Just how are we to know?

When Royce gets stuck in French
  He throws a helpless look
To Murray [W. J.],
Who tells him what to say
In an off-hand sort of way,
  For he's the man that wrote the book.

There was a young fellow named Boody,
Who tried hard to do his whole duty.
  To his room he'd retreat,
  To get out his Greek,
But with Sox Shannon there, pray how could he?

In the 40-yard dash at the meet,
When Exeter lost the first heat;
  "At running you're dead,
  You're a big leather 'ead,"
Were the words from our trainer petite.

There was a young man of high station
Who usually was on probation;
  He attempted to fib,
  When caught with a crib;
He now has an endless vacation.

THE SHYLOCK OF EXETER

Portiere's Speech from the Trial Scene

[With apologies to Shakespeare]

THE charity of Meras is not strained,
It droppeth like a piece of lead from heaven
Unto the place beneath. He is twice blessed;
He wins from him who sells, and him who buys.
He's narrow among the narrowest: his bills
Are used as brands to light our cigarettes,
His windows show the kindling wood he sells,
The punko furniture whereby he makes his dough,
Wherein doth sit the guileless student soft;
But Meras is above this easy life;
He sits enthroned upon a ten cent stool;
He can't afford to sit on things that sell;
And earthly wisdom doth show likest God's
When economy seasons comfort. Hence, O, Meras,
Though "ten off" is thy plea, consider this,—
That in the race of life we all need cash;
We do pray for money, and that same prayer
Doth teach us to go slow with other lucre.

COMPOSITE DECLAMATION

A Welsh-Rarebit Dream By a Student After Rendering Several "Decs"

CALM and unmoved as the marble walls around him stood — Cromwell, who manufactured his own army; out of what? Out of what you call — slaves! Slaves to a horde of petty tyrants, feudal despots, lords. — Yet out of this mixed and as you say despicable race of — venerable senators, with outstretched hands and trembling voices — he forged a thunderbolt, — as he thus addressed them: —

"Let me play the fool. With mirth and laughter let old Wrinkles come, — her withered hands beating her breast, her gray hairs streaming in the wind. — But I come not here to talk. You know too well — the quality of mercy is not strained. It droppeth as the gentle rain from heaven upon — the right honorable gentleman, who has called me an unimpeached traitor. I ask, why not a — fanatic, for you read history not with your eyes but with your prejudices. — But enough reply for you, it is because I am a Roman.

"Mr. President, I shall enter upon no encomium upon — the atrocious crime of being a young man, which the honorable gentleman has, with such spirit and decency, charged upon me. — But this very day an honest man, my neighbor, there he stands, was struck, struck like a dog. — It was the act of a coward, who raises his arm to strike, but has not the power to give the blow. — I will not call him villain, because — where American liberty raised its first voice, where its youth was nurtured and sustained, there it still lives, in the strength of its manhood. — I will not sit unconcerned while my liberty is invaded, nor — rot in Roman dungeons, to meet your vengeance. — Yet this is Rome, that sat on her seven hills and from her throne of beauty ruled the world. — Go, bring your threatened tortures. The woes I see impending over this fated city are enough to sweeten death. — It will fall at last, if fall it must, amid the proudest monuments of its glory, and on the very spot of its origin. — I am here to lay the shattered remains of my — beloved mother — on the floor of this house."

EXTRACT FROM THE ANGLO-SAXON COMICAL

Sir Punko de Dudley at the Court of "Bluff King Hal"

"What, ho, varlets, hang me this catiff from the battlements." The voice of Bluff King Hal echoed through the halls of Schloss Shaterian, at Anselmi on the Bum, as he discovered a traitor in his court.

"What, ho," again yelled the Kingly Bluffer, and the eunuchs of the Royal Guard woke up and gave Carpenter a bath.

"Did'st not tell us, lying knave," said he to Sir Punko de Dudley, "that thou could'st hoist thy clumsy carcass five feet in the air by the aid of yon pole? And canst thou do it? No! By ma halidon, thou lout, we shall not suffer this. Hanging is too good for thee, and a murrain upon it. Should we hang thee out of hand, Mr. McKendrick, in years to come, would hold us up to execration before Briceland and the other rushers. No, thou shalt not hang, 's death, sirrah, we shall devise a punishment e'en fitting thy crime. Five feet, forsooth, thou canst not vault at all. Dost see yon table in the corner? It hath been weak since Baron Gillette chanced sit on same last Michaelmas, and I have long desired to strengthen it. What, ho, bring the Royal Furniture Dealer." With pallid face and pockets jingling with gold, Sir Ralphie de Meras, Earl of Tightwad, and Baron Ten-off, slunk forward. "Royal master, I have a bill which I must meet immediately, could'st thou not—" "A plague upon this fellow," roared the King, "I sent for thee, not to pay but to command. Cut off Sir Punko de Dudley's legs, and after they have been embalmed let them be beautified with quaint arabesques and set under yon table for supports."

The horrible sentence is done, and the once beautiful calves of Sir Punko have become but the inglorious pedestals of a common table. So do the mighty fall.

INTERVIEWS

INTERVIEW WITH ADERHOLD

The Pean reporter called upon Mr. Aderhold and was very courteously received. Mr. Aderhold called one of his pupils to bring Scotch and soda for his guest, and was greatly surprised on finding out that one of the obligations taken by every member of the Pean Board is to abstain teetotally from any form of intoxicating liquors.

Mr. Aderhold apologized profusely for his ignorance of Exeter's traditions and took both the drinks himself. When asked about the palatial mansion of which he was in charge, Mr. A. stated briefly and pleasantly that, although the boys caused him a little trouble at times, on the whole they comported themselves with all due respect to him. He admitted that he had been a boy once himself, and had seen a wild time one Hallow'en night when he (he said this with downcast eyes and a becoming blush) was kissed by some pert hussey. Mr. Aderhold said that, although only six years old at the time, he felt how deeply immoral the world was, and that ever since then he had been striving to reform it, and had devoted many years of conscientious labor to this task. When asked about Alumni Hall, Mr. A. was peculiarly reticent, and changed the conversation. Seeing that Mr. A. was too astute to give away any state secrets, our discomfited representative made his adieu to his host, who kindly condescended to accompany him to the door.

He explained this later at the portal in an almost apologetic way by saying that he had to be very careful about his boys' associates, and that they were not allowed to speak with strangers unless there were three chaperones within hearing distance.

INTERVIEW WITH K. BOYNTON

The Pean reporter slid himself into his best attire, preparatory to calling on Mr. Kellogg Boynton. It was with mingled feelings of awe and anticipation that our humble representative rang the bell of Mr. Boynton's domicile. Exeter's great wire-manipulator, lady killer, and leg-puller condescended to answer the door in person.

He ushered our representative through a lofty wainscotted hall into his library.

A soft green light, carefully concealed, suffused the room and its contents with a quiet, harmonious sombreness. Countless portraits of beautiful women were scattered about the room in reckless profusion. On several of these were signatures in round feminine handwriting. There were also several strangely beautiful verses inscribed on them. The reporter remembered one of them in particular, because of its delicacy of thought and refinement of diction. It read as follows: "Your'n forever, Kid, although as yet you hav'nt given me a bid." Mr. Boynton observed the admiring gaze of our representative and remarked with a knowing wink, "Yeh, there's many a broken heart left in the wake of my conquests, but fie! fie! let's not discuss that further." The reporter appreciated his inherent modesty and refrained from any more questions on that subject.

The main object of the reporter's visit was to find how Mr. Boynton stood on the recent class-day elections. The gist of Mr. Boynton's sentiments are given as follows:

"For years I have been closely associated with the intricacies of Exeter's politics. By great exercise of will power I have put myself in the background and let others take the honors, but true genius is sure to be discovered, and my recent master stroke in the nominations for president is now well known. Although the plot was foiled, I believe that considerable credit is due to me." The reporter agreed with him, but mentally placed the prefix "dis" before the word credit.

Mr. Boynton graciously conducted the reporter to the door, and bade him a courteous "Good night."

Our representative took a deep breath of the fresh night air and thanked his stars that he was not famous like Mr. Boynton.

INTERVIEW WITH BURNS

As our representative was walking in the direction of Mr. Burns' home he perceived a lurid glare flickering around the corner, and heard a loud boisterous sound. Suddenly Mr. Burns, himself, appeared in the midst of the noise and glare, and also in his new Schnarts, Hoffner and Garx Kollege-Kut Klothes for Young Men. The color and pattern of the suit, socks, and passionate vest, explained the commotion.

He strode along, apparently unconscious of the awestruck timorous glances of the love lorn Fem. Sem. Girls.

Our reporter screwed up his courage, and in a trembling voice humbly begged Mister Charles Henry Burns, 5th, to grant him the honor of a few minutes of his precious time.

With a bored manner, which he courteously attempted to conceal, Mr. Burns came to a halt, carefully flicked an infinitesimal speck of dust from his "Harry Blood" knit cravat and said, "Well, my good man, what can I do for you? What's that? Representative of the PEAN? Oh, yes, that's the school annual, isn't it? Well, you might quote me as saying that there is not enough attention given to the correct manner of dressing in the school. Of course I realize that there are many common fellows in school who cannot afford to spend the amount on their wearing apparel that I do, but it does seem to me that these—ah—disgusting flannel shirts and corduroy trousers should be eschewed. Yes, I play football, and am very popular, but I am naturally so retiring and shy that it hasn't been generally found out."

Our representative, quite overcome by the odor of perfume which emanated from his silken mouchoir, hastily thanked the great man, climbed over the Academy fence, and fainted. He was discovered later, and it was some time before he could give a coherent account of his interview.

GOOD ADVICE FOR ALL

WHENEVER you enter another's room, which you do of course without rapping, expectorate freely and with abandon around the cuspidore, but not in it. This enables you to feel at home and prepares for the festivities which are to come. To show that you fully appreciate your friend's "make yourself at home" spread yourself over his Morris chair and place your pedal extremities on his desk. Clutch at any musical instrument that may be lying around and render a selection on it, whether you know how or not. Nothing improves an instrument so much as constant use. Meanwhile cast your eye about for any tobacco which your host may have for his private use, or for any cigarettes or cigars which are laid away as souvenirs. If you are successful in the search, "light up," remarking at the same time that anyone who doesn't keep better tobacco than that should be run out of school. This shows that you are a man of taste, and a good judge of all things pertaining to the weed.

THE PREP.

When Freddy Prep. left home and Ma for a course at P. E. A.,
His father said in parting, "Here's a cheque to pay your way,
And as it is a goodly sum I'm sure that it is clear
That, if you spend it wisely, it should last you half the year."

But when poor Freddy came to town, he very shortly found
That calls upon his pocketbook were clustered thick around.
For half the Profs. had written books which Freddy had to buy,
And, if those Profs. were very wise, the price was very high.

While furnishing his little room, young Freddy grew quite rash,
For he reasoned, down to Meras's, "I get 10 per cent. off for cash.
And surely when that pleasant man takes all that off for me,
It will not cost me very much to fill my room—you see."

When Freddy paid his little (?) bill, he saw with many groans,
That Morris chairs and pictures had cost him many bones.
Poor Freddy saw his goodly roll was growing rather slim,
And when he'd paid up for his books it really looked quite thin.

Thus Bachelder and Meras did the worst that they could do,
And then the fellows thought 'twas time to get in their work, too.
And so our Freddy was besieged from numerous directions,
And he had no peace till he'd subscribed to all the school collections.

He bought his radiator cheap, I think it cost him two,
And then he ponied up a "V" to pay his chapel due.
Some miscreant stole his gas meter, probably for a spree,
That night he came and put it back, but Freddy coughed up three.

He supported all the football teams, both varsity and class.
He paid all his assessments up, and then a lack—alas,
To crown all other wicked stings that were given to this little runt (the most nefarious swipe),
They charged him two and a quarter when he went to hunt for snipe.

So Freddy quickly purchased it, and when his purse he tapped
He found that it was empty, poor Freddy now was strapped.
The letter that he wrote to Pa was very brief, it said:—

Dear Pa:—
I'm bust completely. Please send money to your

READER

Do not take a joke
As something wholly serious,
And start right in to croak,
As though you were delirious.

These knocks are all in sport—
Just take them as they're sent,
Not acting like the sort
Whose life in groans is spent.

Load up your pipe and smoke
And take things at their best—
For ev'ry joke that we shall poke
Is sincerely pok'd in jest.

The "WARD" SAFETY RAZOR

THE ONLY SAFETY RAZOR with the NATURAL SLIDING STROKE. It cuts the beard and does not scrape it off like a hoe.

Having only two parts, HANDLE AND BLADE, it is easily cleaned and adjustable to use in an instant. Nothing complicated. Nothing to learn. Just the Natural Sliding Stroke, and a smooth, clean shave. No Honing or Stropping. Each blade gives ten or more satisfactory shaves, and, costing but five cents each, can be cast aside when dull.

RETAIL PRICE—Handle and 12 Double-edged blades 24 perfect cutting edges, in a handsome case, each $4.00
